Last Minute Holiday Gifts for Active Travelers & Outdoor Enthusiasts for Under $100

by Joslin Fritz - Lady Sherpa (December 22nd, 2012)

Michael Bublé is crooning White Christmas, sugar cookies are in the oven, and the hot toddy's are being sipped-I'm full-blown in the holiday spirit. Seeing as Christmas is just around the weekend (wink), and I still have a couple of last-minute gifts to get, I figured I must not be the only one. Here are some suggestions for your the outdoorsy or travel minded friend/sister/father/bestie, all under $100.

All Clear Camelbak Water Purifier ($99) The All Clear is a simple, useful gift for any globe trotter. A regular Camelbak BPA free bottle is paired with a heavy lid that uses UV light to purify drinking water. The light takes just 60 seconds to work, and presto you have potable water.

Included in the package is a separate lid for the bottle and USB cable to charge the purifier, along with a handy travel case for the UV purifying top as well. Weighing just over 1 pound, it's an no brainer for any traveler.
