The Scoop: OK, we know what you're thinking. It's a water bottle. Pause that thought

- this is anything but average.

What makes this Camelbak version unique is its plant-based filter that tucks inside the straw to transform tap water into more palatable H20.

The BPA-free bottle is great to carry around and hopefully convince you to stay hydrated throughout the day.

The top of the straw is made from silicone and features a self-seal design. In other words, it's spill-proof, so you can tote it in a backpack or gym bag worry-free that liquid won't spill on your goods.

Note, the bottle isn't microwave-friendly, but you can fill it with hot water.

The filter lasts for approximately three months, and the bottle has a lifetime guarantee.
